The Content Production Flow

KCL AISOC will operate on a weekly content cycle designed to keep our research and our partners consistently in front of the right audience. Each week we publish a minimum of one in-depth LinkedIn post grounded in original research, alongside two engaging Instagram posts on @kclaisoc. Over an academic year, this builds into 90+ pieces of co-branded and original content, creating a sustained presence rather than one-off visibility.

Prime Central Location

You will have access to some of the brightest minds in the United Kingdom. KCL draws an ambitious, internationally minded cohort into the heart of London, with campuses that sit minutes from the City and a student body shaped by one of the world's most demanding academic environments. The result is a generation of graduates who arrive curious, commercially aware, and ready to engage with the kind of complex, long-horizon thinking that defines Macquarie's work.

Why Macquarie x KCL AISOC

Few global firms have shaped the alternatives landscape the way Macquarie has, and few university societies are built specifically to engage with it. AISOC was built to be one of them. What follows is why we believe this partnership is worth building, and why the timing matters.

Aligned with Macquarie's DNA

AISOC is the only KCL society built exclusively around infrastructure, real assets, and private markets. Every speaker event, case study, and member discussion we run sits on commercial ground Macquarie already owns.

Long Horizon Thinking

Our members are drawn to patient, owner-operator capital rather than short-cycle trading. That mindset shapes who chooses to join us and the kind of student Macquarie meets through the partnership.

30+ yrs

the longest horizon in the industry

A Founding Window

The partner that signs first shapes the relationship for the years that follow. They lock in category recognition before peer firms develop their own routes in.
